At Gannon, the school year begins with a program to initiate incoming and transfer students into the Gannon community. The program, called Sneak Peeks, is held during June and July and familiarizes these new students with the clubs, organizations and programs available at Gannon.

This year informational seminars acquainted these students with Gannon's life style and academic programs. Orientation also provided the students with the opportunity to meet those with whom they will be spending the next four years. Through picnics at the beach, dances and informal get togethers, these students were able to mingle and appreciate the company of new-found friends.

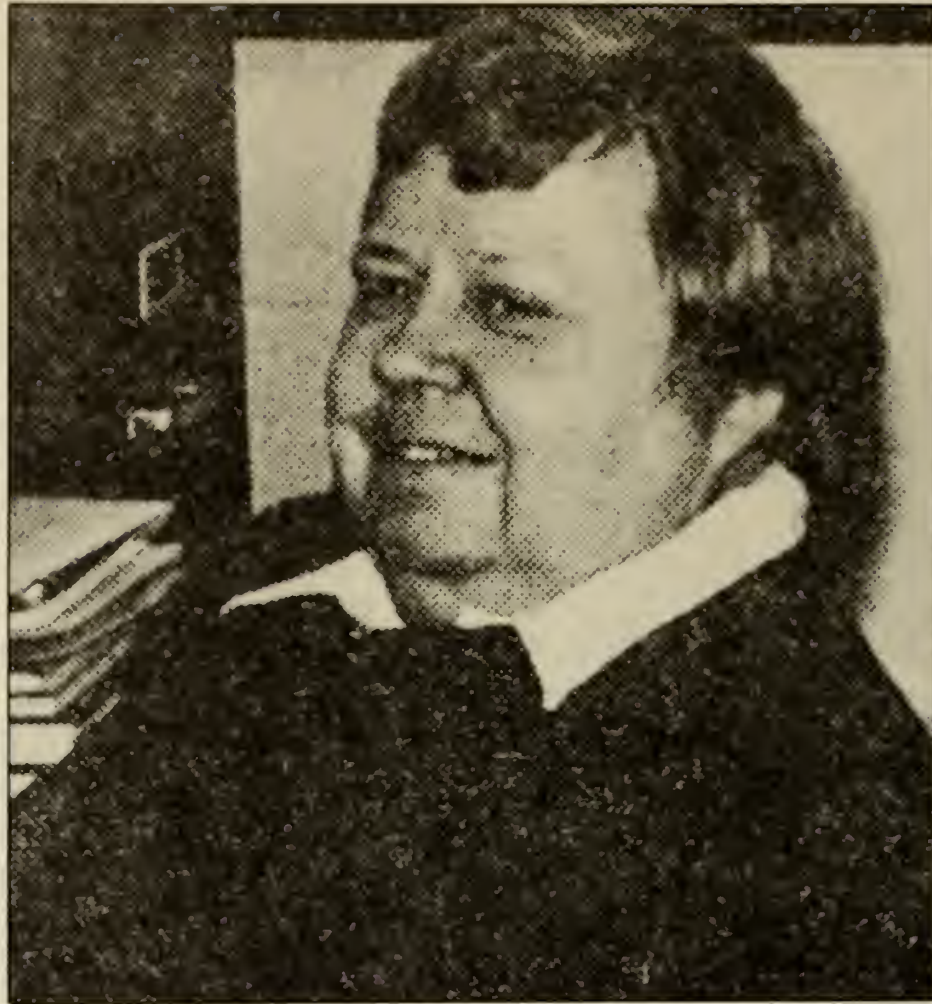

FACULTY

IN LOVING MEMORY

DR. ELMER F. KOHLMILLER

1922 – 1983

Dr. Elmer F. Kohlmler, professor and director of the medical technology program, died November 26, 1983 as a result of a cardiac arrest suffered on Friday, November 18. On behalf of his colleagues and students, the Faculty Section is dedicated in his memory.

Dr. Kohlmler graduated from Saint Andrew's School and Cathedral Prep in 1942. He earned an undergraduate degree in 1947 and a master's in biology in 1950, both from Case Western Reserve University.

After teaching approximately two years at Gannon, he completed his doctorate at the Saint Thomas Institute. He then returned to Gannon to continue teaching for twenty-six years and also to work as the chairman for the department of biology.

Dr. Kohlmler served as advisor to the Beta Beta Beta Honorary Biological Fraternity, was active with the Pennsylvania Junior Academy of Science, and a member of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science.

Even though Elmer Kohlmler is no longer with us, he has definitely left his mark on the Gannon society. He contributed so very much in so many ways, expanding the biology curriculum and also in less tangible aspects. He actively took interest in the many students with which he had come in contact. Dr. Elmer Kohlmler was definitely a major asset to Gannon and the biology department, always giving his own brand of caring and his special personality to all who knew him. To say that he would merely be missed by the students, faculty, administrators, friends, and numerous others that he had touched during his lifetime, would be an understatement. His death leaves a vacancy that can never be filled by as giving or as concerned an instructor as he was.

Requiescat in pace in aeternum.

The Second Annual "Clash of the Titans"

Once again all of Gannon's collective eyes turned to Hommer Miller Center for the Second Annual "Clash of the Titans" Faculty vs Administration Basketball Game. The two teams of mild mannered academic personnel become showcases of athletic prowess and ability.

The faculty team, captained by David Frew, professor of management, will attempt to rectify their two-point loss last year.

Captain Don Sukitsch, director of enrollment, will attempt to once again lead his team to victory.

Last year's match, although a close one was not an unusually violent. Although this year's match might prove to be quite a competition. The extravaganza took place at the Gannon Auditorium Tuesday, February 14.

GANNON THEATRE: RICH AND FAMOUS

COMMUTER SERVICE

The Cammuter Club has been recognized by Gannon, this past year, as an official organization. The purpose of the Cammuter Club is to entice the commuturs who attend Gannon to be more active with on campus activities. The Cammuter Club, pending 150 paid member ships, will be able to hold a seat on the Student Government Assaciation. Marlene Weindarf, a junior foreign languages and international business major was the acting president this past year. Marlene sees the club as a way to integrate commuturs into the Gannon communi ty by sponsoring activities and representing them to the Student Government.

TRI-SIGMA

Sigma Sigma Sigma, a national sorority, has established a chapter at Gannon. The idea was canonized at Gannon at an executive board meeting in February. The canonization process encompassed a wide range of events and activities, including participation by the sorority and the local sorority alumni. The original chapter of Tri Sigma was founded in April 20, 1828.

Laurie Corral, president of the Gannon colony, hopes that the interest aroused by the alumni in the area will cause a flourishing, new sorority at Gannon. Holly Nishimura will act as advisor for the chapter and Reverend Michael McGraw will be the chaplain.

HERE'S THE NEWS: HUEY COMES TO GANNON . . .

Thanks to the Student Government Association, Donnie Iris and the Cruisers and Huey Lewis and the News rocked Gannon's Hammermill Center on February 20, 1984. Opening act Iris, a native of Beaver Falls, sang such hits as "My Girl" and "Love is like a Rock." Lewis and the band sang hits from their previous albums and their new LP "Sports." Lewis' songs included "Heart of Rock and Roll," "I Want a New Drug," and "Heart and Soul."

Most of the success of the concert rested with the Student Government Association and the committee members Mary Ellen Hezlep and Tracy Healy. SGA was so pleased with this concert that these kind of events will definitely continue for many years.

Jesse Jackson at Gannon

Reverend Jesse Jackson, former presidential candidate, came to Erie and specifically Gannon's Hammermill Center to campaign before approximately 2,000 blacks and whites at what he termed the "Rainbow Coalition." Jackson incited the crowd by shouting, "I am somebody, I need a job, I want a job."

Jackson's style of addressing crowds does not take on the traditional format. His style is more that of the charismatic Baptist preacher than the stalwart politician. Audiences all across the nation are constantly found joining in the rally to a fever pitch.

Jackson's address centered around the needs of the American people. His tone was positive, however he did mention the other candidates at that time.

The one negative note of the entire Jackson visit was the presence of a group of picketers outside the Aud. proclaiming their opposition to abortion and to Jackson's stand on the issue.

All in all, the Jackson visit proved to be a productive one and gave the Gannon community along with the Erie community a chance to meet with a renowned political figure.

IN MEMORIAM

GOSBY "GOOSE" PRYOR

The cover of the 1982-83 basketball season program featured a drawing of a young athlete with a singular word in bold print below it: Goose. That was all. Simply, Goose. There was no need for a full name or further descriptions. Because everyone knew who it was. Everyone knew it was Goose.

We could remember Goose Pryor with paragraphs full of facts and figures about his remarkable high school and college basketball career, his A.A. American candidacy, and the fact that he will probably be inducted to the Gannon University Hall of Fame. We could remember the exciting games when Goose caught fire and made magic happen on the courts, the times when he dished out and the times when more than a thousand fans chanted his name over and over again in hopes of a needed score and then cheered as their feet and cheered drowning out the quiet swish of the seemingly effortless ball that made it hit the rim and be longed for and unforgotten by Goose.

We could remember Goose as a leader, as a team captain of the Golden Knights during his senior years. We could remember him as a good sport, swallowing questionable referee calls with determined forbearance and getting on to the business of the game. We could remember him as a gifted athlete of natural ability, yet still a player always willing to learn more.

We could remember Goose as a soft spoken easy going student, walking casually through the quadrangle behind Old Main, palming a textbook easily in his hand. We could remember the wide shy smile, the polite nod of his head when he saw you passing by. We could remember him looking dashing as could be in the tasteful and snappy clothing he was famous for, and as a team spokesman stepping tentatively up to the podium to speak to members of the media at the annual athletic dinner.

In remembering Goose, there are innumerable pictures that flash into our minds — pictures of the athlete, of the student, of the man. But if he had his way, Goose would probably like to be remembered as just a simple, sincere person with a big heart. A person who, both athletically and personally, reached as high and as far as he could. And never stopped reaching.

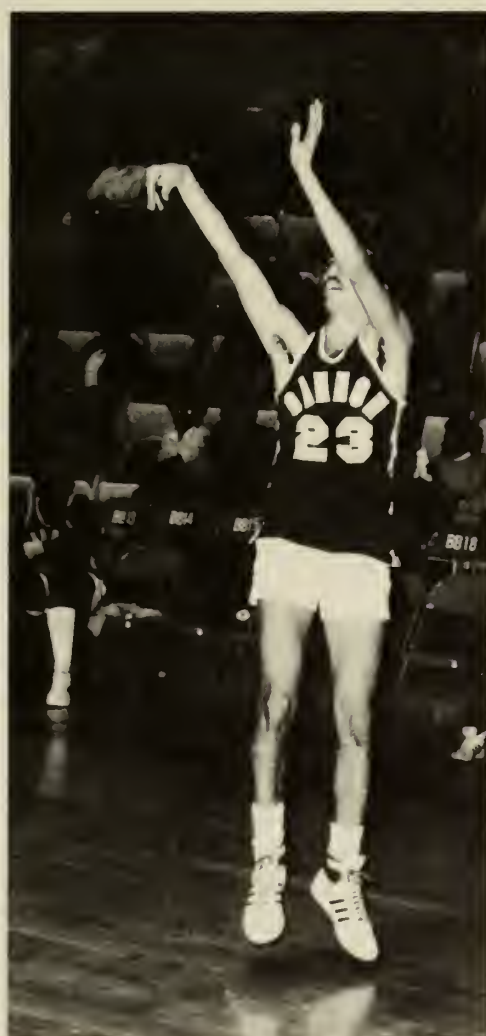

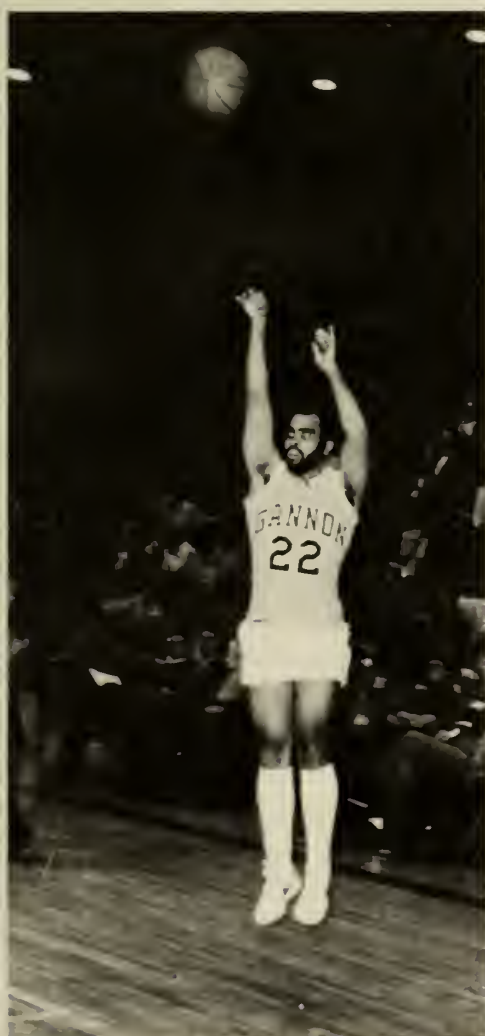

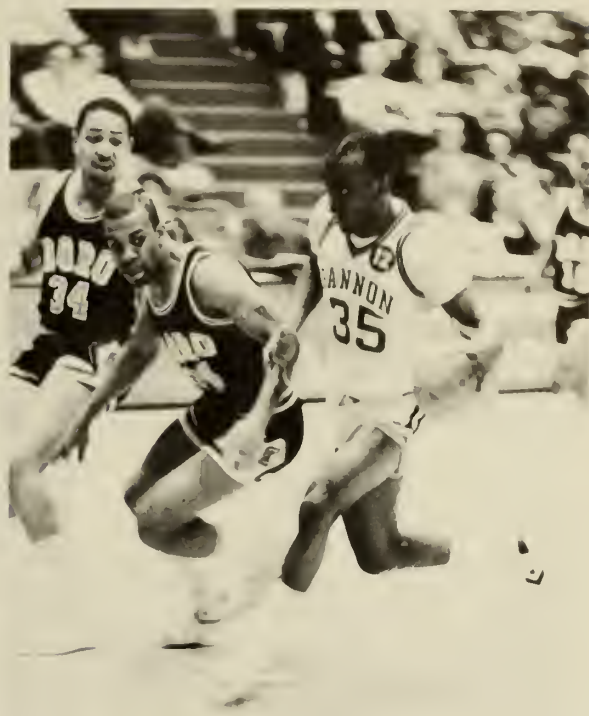

Goose Pryor was tragically killed on July 5, 1983 when he was struck by a tractor-trailer on Interstate 90 near Conneaut, Ohio on his way home from a job interview. Those of us at Gannon who knew him — friends, faculty, administrators, students, coaches, teammates, and his many fans — will not soon forget the man whose personality, ability, and spirit made him recognizable by a single word: Goose. It is a name and a man we will remember fondly, sadly, and with pride.

May God grant him eternal rest.

Reprinted from the July/August University Record with permission from authoress Monica L. Lewis.

One further comment on the remarkable Goose Pryor — as was expected he was inducted into the Gannon University Hall of Fame with pride, honor, and appreciation for his athletic prowess for the Golden Knights.

Year In Review

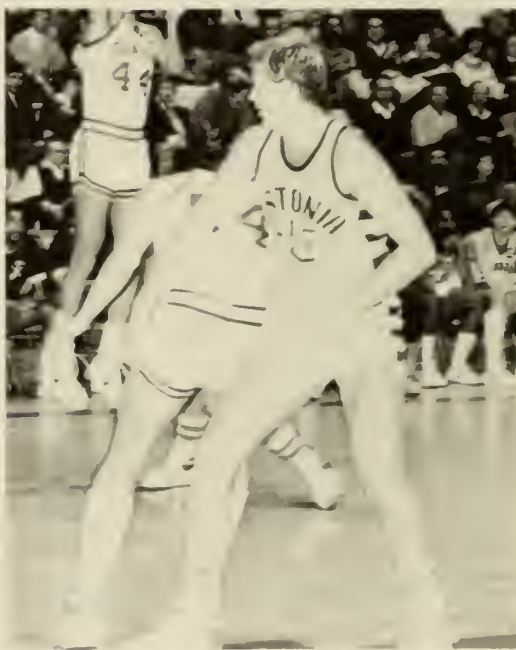

Gannon University's basketball squad finished the year on an up and down note. The high of the season's end was winning the Mid-east College Conference Championship and receiving the NCAA East Region B. The low came when the host team couldn't place enough points on the board on either March 9 or 10 to secure a victory.

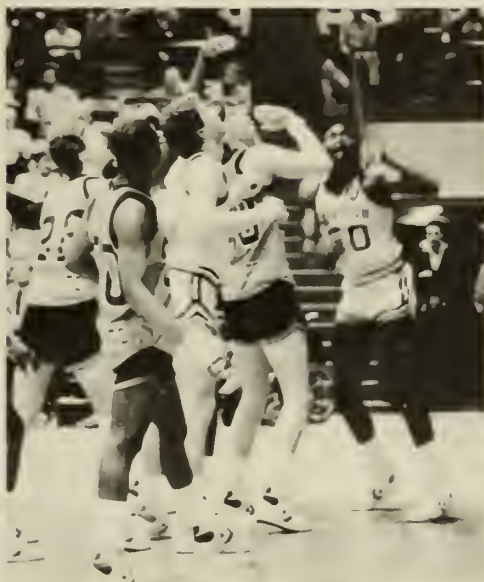

It was a Jorisha Gannon five that garnered the MECC championship. In the opening round, The Peach Street Kids handed Philadelphia Tex. 116 to 69 82 setback. The next evening, the Golden Ones won the first place trophy by outscoring Acelon 77 59.

The East Regionals saw the third seeded team drop a 55 52 contest to C.W. Post. A strong second half performance had the Knights in position to win, but missed opportunities at the charity stripe proved too costly down the stretch. The consolation affair saw a talented Mansfield five blow the Erie crew off the floor. Falling behind from the opening tip, The Peach Street Kids couldn't garner enough steam to catch the Mounties. At the sound of the final buzzer, the scoreboard read Mansfield 94 — Gannon 78.

The Maroon and Gold were paced in the 1983-84 season by Junior Dutch Warner. The point guard averaged 20.2 ppg. His output of 629 points established the new single season scoring mark. Senior Craig Dixon led the team in rebounding. The Men's Georgia product collected 11.2 missed shots or during.

Five seniors depart Erie scenes after this year. Expected to pick up their diplomas are Dixon (14.6 ppg), Dave Razzano (11.2 ppg), Mike Kahan (10.3 ppg), Willie Pullam (3.7 ppg), and Anthony Rame (3.5 ppg).

HOMECOMING 1983

Once again Gannon University students commemorated the fall season with the traditional Homecoming festivities. The celebration began the morning of October 29 with the annual Homecoming Parade. Many of the clubs and organizations throughout the campus drove down the streets in brightly decorated cars and floats each presenting their candidate for Homecoming Queen.

Later in the evening, 8-Ball, Gannon's Homecoming Dance, took place at Rainbow Gardens. This year, Moncel Logan was elected Homecoming Queen. Moncel, a freshman Physician's Assistant major was the Resident Life Council's candidate. Her escort was Kevin Miller, a sophomore Industrial Management major.

FOUNDER'S DAY: SENIOR AWARDS

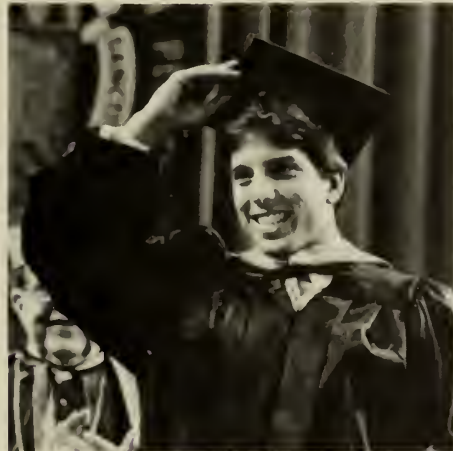

COMMENCEMENT '84

Dr. Joseph Scorrino, Bishop Michael Murphy, and Arthur Gunther

May 13, 1984

The Knight, as the saying goes, is a student-edited community weekly. The Knight is designed to serve the whole Gannon community: students, faculty, administration and staff. The phrase "student-edited" refers to us, the students who work each week to put together a newspaper that will meet the needs of you, our readers. That means finding out what interests you, covering the issues, addressing the problems and keeping a close watch on the news that affects you. We're not all hard-core journalism, though. We're also working to entertain you with features and photos. We're very open to your suggestions and insights in letters to the editor, the Explainer, and guest columns. News tips and story ideas are always welcomed, too.

HUEY LEWIS HIGHLIGHTS SPRING SEMESTER

Huey Lewis and the News and opening act Donnie Iris and the Cruisers played before a full house in Gannon's Hommermill Center last Monday.

The concert was sponsored and organized by the Student Government Association. The SGA spent approximately $27,000 on the concert and received about $25,000 through ticket sales.

"It was an excellent concert and a well-behaved crowd. The organization from the student body was very good and the whole event was well worth the effort," said Director of Student Activities, Holly Nishimura.

About 2,500 tickets were sold, 1,021 to Gannon students and the remainder to the general public, according to Dennis Weed, SGA representative in charge of ticket sales. Weed said that about 400 more tickets were sold to Gannon students than were sold to students for last year's "America" concert. Co-chairman of the SGA concert security committee John Fazio said that there was one minor scuffle in the stands and a few other minor incidents, but overall there were no major security problems. Co-chairwomen of the concert committee Tracy Healy and Mory Hezlep agreed that the concert was a success.

Donnie Iris and the Cruisers warmed up the crowd with such songs as "Love Is Like A Rock,"

"Do You Compute," and "Ah, Leah."

Backstage, Iris said he enjoys playing to college audiences because they can relate to his music easily.

Huey Lewis and the News, who come out after 9:30 p.m., rocked the crowd with hits like "I Want A New Drug," "Working For A Living," and "Do You Believe In Love." Lewis said that he also likes to perform to college audiences, since they respond very well to his music.

TUITION UP $600

Tuition for full-time undergraduate students will increase $600 next year.

This hike is 13 percent over the present rate and brings tuition costs up to $2,200 per semester. Gannon's 2,900 full-time students will be paying $145 per credit hour.

Under the plan, students who are presently enrolled as fall 1984 freshmen will be guaranteed this rate until the spring of 1988, provided they are enrolled full-time in consecutive semesters until then.

ROTC Heads Hope To Revive Pershing Rifles

Although the Pershing Rifles have officially discontinued their activities as a social fraternity in March 1984, the head of Gannon's ROTC program has initiated efforts to reestablish the group as an academic activity within the military science department.

Look at the Pershing Rifles not as being abandoned but rather as being temporarily inactive, said Lt. Col. Dennis McSweeney, who plans to revive the Pershing Rifles in the near future.

According to squadron commander Jim Pasqualini, it was problems of declining member ship that prompted the Pershing Rifles to terminate its activities. The group had a total of 18 members, and would lose half this number to graduation in May. Pasqualini said that six would not be returning to Gannon next year for financial reasons.

In an effort to stimulate interest in the Pershing Rifles, Pasqualini spoke to all ROTC classes about the organization of but only three cadets pledged the fraternity. After two of these pledges said later that they would be leaving the organization for personal reasons, it became obvious that it would be impractical to go on with only four members. "The Pershing Rifles could not continue because of a lack of support," Pasqualini said.

These membership problems also played a major part in the Pershing losing access to their 418 Peach St. fraternity house. They leased the house from Gannon for $600.00 a month, but had recently experienced difficulty in making rent payments.

Pasqualini expressed regrets about discontinuing the Pershing rifles, but hopes that the organization could resume its activities in the near future.

Drinking Liability Law May Affect Frats

by Lori Jakiele

The State Supreme Court's reinstatement of a drinking liability lawsuit may have a stifling effect on social fraternities at Gannon and other colleges across Pennsylvania.

The lawsuit, in which a teenager who wrecked his car after drinking at a company Christmas party, claims the firm is liable for his injuries, was reinstated after the court ruled in a 6-1 decision that hosts can be sued for negligence in Pennsylvania if they serve alcohol to underage guests that are later injured because they are intoxicated.

Fraternities, the centers of social, and often underage drinking on college campuses, fill the role of "hosts" and, according to the new ruling, are liable for their underage guests.

David Jurenovich, director of student living and advisor to Gannon's Interfraternity Council, says the ruling is "going to be a very sensitive issue here."

Jurenovich said Gannon will try to "develop awareness and cooperation" within both the fraternities and the administration. "Cooperation is the key. Gannon doesn't want to make rules that will be made to be broken."

According to Jurenovich, administrators and fraternity members are finalizing plans to bring back the Fraternity Task Force. The Task Force, which worked last year to improve the image of Gannon fraternities, did not operate last semester.

The task force will include Gannon faculty, fraternity members, and members of the IFC. "One of the major issues we will deal with will be alcohol awareness. We want to reinforce what we have been trying to convey to the students: If you are underage and are drinking, you put yourself in a very dangerous position," said Jurenovich.

Keith Taylor, 1983 IFC president, said "he was not aware of the new ruling." "I assumed it had always been the law. It has always been a problem for fraternities," Taylor said.

Taylor said the fraternities are already "more aware of the situation." "We don't want trouble and the school doesn't want trouble. I think, working together, we can avoid it. I know actions will be taken."

Current IFC president Bernie Uzelac said that, although he was only met with IFC members once since his election last week and hasn't had the opportunity to take direct action, "suggestions have been made."

Uzelac is confident that when actions are taken, the fraternities will cooperate. "They don't want suits against them," Uzelac said.

Gannon University Broadcasting May Get Channel 66

Although nothing is confirmed (as of the end of April) it appears that Gannon will receive the license for the last television channel available in the area.

Channel 66, which Gannon University has sought for two years, was also being sought by two other firms. One American Cellular Systems, withdrew their application to the Federal Communications Commission last month as the other, Seneca Broadcasting, remained in contention.

Rumor of the possibility that GUB had bought out Seneca was told to the Knight last Friday. Fr. Thomas McSweeney, GUB president, said he could not comment on the rumor and could say only that a decision should be made next month.

The university vice president of business affairs Kevin Quinn said that he did not know anything about the channel regarding the rumor, pointing out that GUB is a separate entity and not a structure of the university itself. He there does not handle matters of the license directly.

Quinn did explain that the process of two competitors coming to an agreement is not unusual in these cases. "They have plusses — we have plusses. Seneca may withdraw, say, if we pay their expenses. Gannon (Broadcasting) could do the same," Quinn said.

Should GUB be awarded the license, it will join local frequencies 12, 24, 35, and 54. It will be a member of the Catholic Television Network Association.

A Gannon man

rob lewkowicz

Did you ever regret choosing Gannon? Do you still regret choosing Gannon?

I hated Gannon. It was not pretty being a freshman when I didn't even want to be in college. Here I was learning to write a research paper (again?), and finding out the purpose of Gannon's grand Liberal Studies program from a French teacher.

In my first semester I learned how to inter relate in Intro to Sociology, grasped the multiple personalities I was confronted with in Intro to Psychology, and over came all my fears in Intro to Speech.

But I, as an adaptive being (Intro to Man and Environment) realized that cogito ergo sum (Intro to Phil) and that He would guide me through all of this (Intro to Theology).

But there was so much more. I learned to appreciate paintings of nude women (Intro to Art History) in a fully different way than the pin ups of Intro to pornography when I was twelve.

I learned to appreciate poetry from cold plums to warm graves.

And between e.e. and Picasso, ya esrudie espanal in Intro to Spanish.

Yes, I've come a long way baby.

And now that I was properly introduced, I grew like a good cancer. I attained new heights. I bloamed. I developed a full understanding of what this mean old world has to offer. I sobered to the stark reality of the decadence of our society while shedding my ideal views of the past. I took root.

I wasn't always the responsible, well-educated, decent clean-cut, level-headed, considerate, deep, mature young man you read before you.

Yes I, Rob Lewkowicz, am the liberally educated man. A Gannon man. A natch above the rest. An intellectual. A thin thinker. Diverse. Superior. One who understands what the common man fails to see.

And I have this university to thank for this realization. And I would, except, I am so well-educated that I am simply above this institution. Gannon will one day thank me, praise me, and maybe, when I am rich and famous and above all others, Gannon will ask me to speak before the class of 1988.

And I, multi-millionaire mind-of-minds, wholesome, individual and all around nice guy, will say "No."

So there. Nah nah nah.

The other night I had one of the worst nightmares of my life. I dreamt that I was the only conservative left on earth.

It was terrible!

All of my idols, all of my heroes, all of my models have become left winged and Liberal.

— Jesse Helms become Jesse Jackson's running mate.

— William F. Buckley, Jr. become the editor of the Progressive.

— George F. Will become a member of the Americans for Democratic Action.

— James Watt planted a tree.

— Milton Friedman wrote a book entitled Free to Govern.

I began to toss and turn. I broke into a cold sweat, but still the dream got worse.

— Historians discovered that Calvin Coolidge was actually a nice guy.

— Alexander Haig came out in favor of the Nuclear Arms Freeze.

— Iowa elected a democrat to the United States Senate.

— Susan B. Anthony replaced Teddy Roosevelt on Mt. Rushmore.

— Edward Meese III opened a soup kitchen for the poor.

— Ronald Reagan picked a "you know what" for a running mate.

Luckily, I woke from my dream at 8:30 by the sound of Paul Harvey giving his faithful listeners his news commentary. I knew then that I was not the last "wing-tipped" conservative on earth.

A kick in the ads

alice edwards

I remember, when I was small, watching a commercial where a woman in some car parked in some misty nowhere, pulled down the shades on the car windows and proceeded to take a bath while her chauffeur sat staring imperturbably in front of him.

Even though I was just seven, I remember distinctly feeling that if I used that particular brand of bath oil beads, I, too, could be the lady in the tub with her Rolls.

Now that I am older, I am positive, in my heart of hearts, that if I drink Diet Pepsi for gas, that I'm munching potato chips and fudge, I'll be the curvy woman with the biceps. Being a professional feminist, I am rightly insulted by the commercial that suggests men have a preference for Hanes hosiery (and the women in them). And yet, what pantyhose do I buy for the 8 ball? You got it.

• Most products advertised on TV and in magazines can't be that much better than generic or less-advertised brands. Yet when push comes to shove, or rather, hand goes to wallet, the advertisements have affected our purchase.

Worse yet, some advertisements foster inferiority complexes. Can you take off your coat with confidence? Do you have medicine breath? Ring around the collar!

I don't know about you, but I have enough things to worry about without some advertiser trying to market a new product by inventing a new deficiency I didn't know about ten minutes ago.

And while I'm on a roll, I wish that some one would try to sell a product honestly instead of trying to sell me a way of life. No, I don't want to be a Pepper. I'd rather not join the Pepsi generation. And when I drink a beer, I just want a beer, not a Miller time.

Lady Knights Finish

with a Conference Bid

The 17-11 1983-84 Lady Knights posted a bid in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Playoffs to round off their season.

Junior Mary Kay Lynch led the Ladies shooting 48 percent with 203 field goals. Kelly Reedy, also a junior, sank 186 buckets good for 48 percent.

Coach Leo Austin pointed to the games coming off break as the high point of the season. The streak saw the Ladies play well against Edinboro, Carnegie Mellon, Philadelphia Textile, and St. John Fisher.

The disappointment of the season was the loss to Calgate in ECAC playoff action.

After a see-saw season, the Ladies still came out on the winning end.

Playoffs Highlight

Knight Season

Past season conference action and an NCAA East Region playoff bid highlighted the 1983-84 Knight basketball season and a 20-11 record.

The Golden Knights earned a spot in the East regions by defeating two Mideast Collegiate Conference rivals, Philadelphia Textile and LeMayne. The Knight five were then unsuccessful as they hosted the East regionals and they dropped their season final to C.W. Post.

A pair of seniors and a junior were the leaders in the Knights' first season with playoff action in five years.

Seniors Craig Dixon and Dave Razzana, 14.6 and 11.2 points per game, were the second and third leading scorers, respectively. Junior, Burch Warner, led the team in scoring with 20.2 points per game average.

The Lancers were not without some turbulence throughout their season, as they had to overcome the resignation of their head coach Richard Fox. Assistant Steve Huefner took over the 11-5 team and changed a few personnel. The change saw the Knight go into an up-tempo offense and an impressive second-half finish.

Fox Resignation

Shocks Gannon

The unexpected resignation of Gannon basketball's Head Coach Dick Fox shook-up the university community.

Athletic Director Bud Elwell confirmed the resignation.

Fox was in the last year of his second three-year contract.

In a press conference, Fox explained his decision, saying that during the January 23 Edinboro game, he had done the opposite of what he had been teaching his teams when he failed to go into a "Georgia offense" when Gannon was up by five points.

Fox said the only way to "clear the air" was by resigning.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The 1984 LANCE staff would like to gratefully recognize these certain individuals for their invaluable contributions to this year's book.

To our Herff Jones representative, Tam Chaffee, thank you for everything: the pictures, the typewriter, the layouts, the understanding as to why the deadlines were sometimes missed, and for leaving us your telephone number (a mistake you will probably always regret).

To our advisor, Monica Lewis, thank you for your unending faith in our struggle to continue the tradition of the LANCE.

Thank you to Dr. Paul Peterson, without whose aid the Faculty section would have never been the same.

A very special thanks to the faculty members who took the time to answer our questionnaires.

Much appreciation to the Athletic Department for their priceless athletic releases that aided in the development of the Sports section.

Thanks to our photography company, Davor Photo Inc., for fulfilling our photo requirements, senior pictures, and their limitless extra assistance.

Lastly, a personal thanks to the KNIGHT staff who assisted in the completion of their section. A special thank you to Rob Lewkowicz, Editor in chief, Lori Jokiel, Roger Trask, and Tina DiSalvo (for her wonderful pics).

Thank you to anyone that we may have overlooked in our haste and short-sightedness.

From The Editor . . .

The college school year begins. Students, lost or needing information, crowd the advisors' offices.

"Summer Orientation!" one frustrated advisor mumbles under his breath.

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," another advisor says to her friend, after overhearing him. "I enjoy it."

Summer orientation, a program that acquaints incoming freshmen and transfer students with Gannon, begins the school year . . .

This scene, a fictitious representation, is similar to scenes I have seen in my two years as an orientation advisor.

Incoming students never get a chance to see the history they've become a part of as students of Gannon. So for the space I have I'd like to tell you a little about Gannon's history and about the high and low points of the year I've spent as editor of the Lance.

Gannon University was founded under the name of Carondeal College, a part of Villa Maria College in 1931. In 1941, Carondeal College became Gannon School of Arts and Sciences; in 1978, Gannon became an accredited university.

Some of the more recent changes at Gannon include changing the name of the Gannon College of Business to the Dahlkemper School of Business Administration and the building of a student recreation center. The rec center is scheduled for operation this fall.

A second computer lab was constructed and opened in the fall term of 1983. Gannon also added three new programs for autumn 1984: a health and physical education program, a manufacturing program, and an operations management program.

Although Gannon has its shining moments this year, we also had our sadder moments. The unfortunate deaths of both Dr. Elmer F. Kahmiller, director of the medical technology program and former chairman of the biology department, and Gasby "Goose" Pryor, a Gannon alumnus and former basketball star.

We mourn the loss of these two brave Gannonites.

Mr. Ralph Miller, head of the computer science department, suffered critical injuries in a car accident this year on his mid-semester break. Fortunately, Miller is recovering.

My staff and I spent many hours planning and laying out the 1984 Lance. We hope our endeavour is well accepted and, perhaps, I hope you cherish it as I know I will.

I would like to thank my staff for the countless hours they wrapped within these pages. They are:

As the school year ends graduation brings many mixed feelings. Excitement, fear, sadness, and, yes, happiness. As I look back, I will feel another sensation, a sensation of gripping pain — pain of loss. How many others have stood in this same place and felt these same things? Many, many. I'm sure.
